Iowa State Savings Bank, Cedar Rapids, Iowa.
Corner Third Street and Twelfth Ave.

The Iowa State Savings Bank was founded by several Bohemian-American community leaders. They included Frank Mitvalsky (a furrier and realtor), Joseph Simon, Edward Hach (a saloon/bottling works manager), Anton Tomec, VO Hasek (a dentist), JW Lessinger (cashier), LL Blahnik (a building contractor), FJ Dorvak (assistant cashier), John C. Petrovitsky (a physician) and JW Pichner. Within a year of its founding, the bank advertised capital of $50,000. Tomec was the bank's first president and Hasek served as Vice President. In 1906 the bank selected a 3rd street location at 1127 3rd St SE midway between the CSPA Hall and the earliest center of commercial activity along 14th Ave. SE to build its first building. Frugal

Bohemian families sought the services of the bank for home mortgages and businesses benefited from having a neighborhood banker for their commercial account needs. The bank also generated street traffic and brought potential customers to the growing number of businesses along 3rd St. and 14th Avenue. As a sign of success, the corner building was doubled in size by 1910 and within a decade the business had grown to the point where an even larger facility was needed. After the bank moved to the new headquarters the old bank building was converted to use as the Globe Store, a grocery and meat market. Otto and Leo Lzicar were the proprietors. During the 1930's the business advertised that they offered "The Best Foods for Less". This building along with the other contributing buildings in the Bohemian Commercial Historic District tell the story of architectural styles adopted for the buildings from 1880 till the 1950's
